

Zoom BADth Writing Workshops

Tuesday 26th April (6 - 9.30pm) - ACADEMIC WRITING

Facilitator: Mark Chater

Tuesday 31st May (1 - 4pm) - CREATIVE WRITING

Facilitator: Liz Merrick

Tuesday 5th July (2 - 5pm) - CREATIVE WRITING

Facilitator Mark Chater

Building on our successful writing workshops BADth is now offering other significant support and input from different disciplines. The motivation is to encourage Dramatherapists to continue and develop contact with the wider academic and cultural world. The sessions are FREE for BADth Members!

You will be supported to achieve the goal you set yourself (make it realistic) and build your confidence to share good practice and innovation through writing, which might include, abstracts for conferences, posters or just getting together some ideas.

Facilitators and peers will share tips and ideas to help you get started and help direct towards completion of the task you set yourself. There will be a small discussion about how to publish your work in a journal.

"Mark was an excellent facilitator. He was clear and supportive throughout, and I found the session inspiring. I started writing my abstract the next day having put it off for weeks!"

"The workshop created a conducive space for sharing, listening, learning, no pressure, mutual encouragement and appreciation"

Mark Chater is a writer/consultant on education, religion, worldviews, ecology, theology, and dialogue. A former teacher, academic, policy adviser, and charitable trust Director, Mark lives in Cumbria, writing fiction and supporting educational initiatives. Currently he is an editor of the Reforming RE blog series, a theology and ethos adviser for Oasis Global, a Trustee/Director of Good Shepherd Multi-Academy Trust, and serves on various advisory committees related to worldviews education, diversity education, and Religious Education policy. He is a Professor of Practice at the University of Cumbria. Mark has written/edited eight books, including theology (Jesus Christ, Learning Teacher: where theology and pedagogy meet, SCM Press, 2020), RE (Does Religious Education have a Future?, Routledge, 2013); We Need to Talk about RE, Jessica Kingsley, 2017; Reforming RE: Power and knowledge in a worldviews curriculum, John Catt, 2020).

Liz Merrick joined the executive in 2020. In March 2021 she worked with Jane Bourne to set up monthly writing workshops free for Badth members. These workshops have now been running a year and have had good attendance and excellent feedback. Liz has facilitated some of the creative writing workshops and supported all the other writing workshops. It has spurred her on to write. She has now had an article published in The Prompt and is keen to continue honing her style.
